

Mark Beckwith
1601 Madison Blvd.
Bartlesville, OK 74006
918 440-6123

January 18, 2006

To: Federal Communications Commission
Re: RM-11305

In regard to RM-11305, the FCC of course recognizes the prudence of protecting amateur weak-signal and low-bandwidth work. These activities should be promoted, not hampered. RM-11305 would hamper these efforts and as proposed could potentially render them impossible to practice.

I am concerned that RM-11305 is nothing more than a selfish attempt on the part of a small special interest group that does not represent a large majority of radio amateurs, to secure more privileges for themselves at the expense of a large majority of their fellow radio amateurs. In effect, it appears to be nothing more than a self-serving privilege grab with the hope that nobody is paying attention.

Please do not pass RM-11305, it would be poor regulation.